

Four Stage Missiology

Overview

In the 1980s, Foursquare Missions International (United States) developed a missiology in fulfilling the Great Commission of making disciples of all nations. The Four Stage National Development process, which was also visually depicted through a “wheel” (see below), has an end goal of establishing new national churches in nations around the world. “Each stage in the cycle has the goal of reproducing what is infinitely reproducible.”

Stage 1--Initiate--to make responsible, reproducing disciples...and begin a local fellowship of believers

Stage 2--Nurture--to make responsible, reproducing leaders...of godly character...who mentor...and become leaders of leaders

Stage 3--Expand--to make responsible, reproducing congregations who multiply culturally appropriate churches that together become a regional or national church movement

Stage 4--Send--to make responsible, reproducing missionary-sending national churches who make disciples of the nations.⁶

The Four Stage Missiology is examined further in the Disciples of All Nations book by John Amstutz, D.Min. Please read the entire Disciples of All Nations book with this corresponding section.

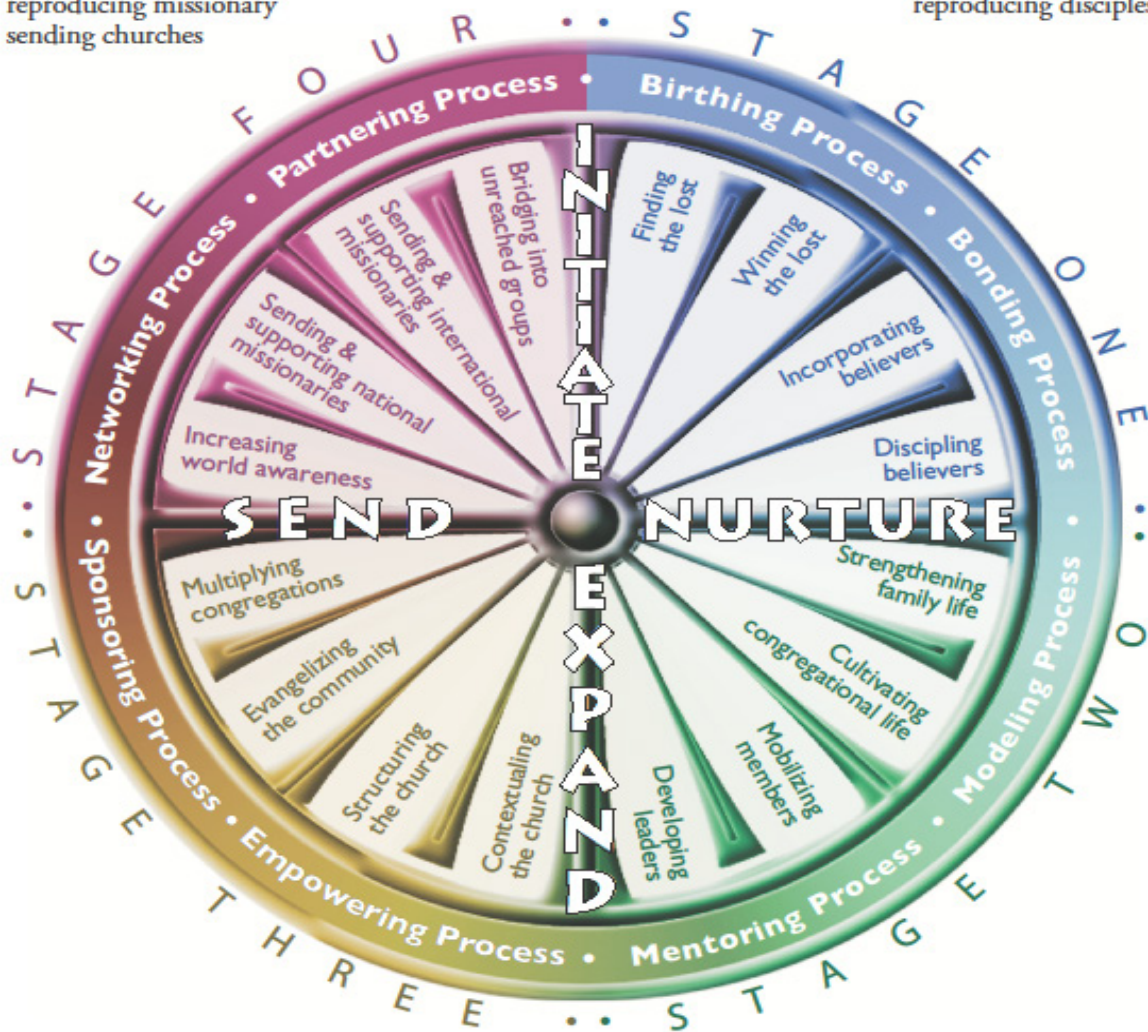

National Church Development – Four Stages

Stage 4 - Send - extending

Goal: to make responsible, reproducing missionary sending churches

Stage 1 - Intitiate - evangelizing

Goal: to make responsible, reproducing disciples

Stage 3 - Expand - multiplying
Goal: to make responsible, reproducing congregations

Stage 2 - Nurture - strengthening
Goal: to make responsible, reproducing leaders

Interview Questions

- In your own words, please describe each of the four stages and how they promote responsible missional growth.

Pastoral Considerations/Application

- We want pastors who wholeheartedly value and champion all four stages of missional growth.